AutoCAD 2013 introduces the capability to include workflows using AutoLISP, a dynamic programming language that was introduced as part of AutoCAD LT 2013. Since then Autodesk has released two additional versions of AutoCAD. AutoCAD 2019 was released in September 2018 and AutoCAD 2021 is expected to be released in October 2020. Prior to AutoCAD 2011, Autodesk introduced its Lightworks video editing software that was sold as a standalone product. Lightworks is a video editing tool for preparing videos and animated images for Internet and television. AutoCAD 2011 was introduced to include Lightworks. Autodesk is a software company that produces AutoCAD and other CAD products. Autodesk developed AutoCAD after they purchased author and programmer Joe Engelbart's software company in 1982. They have since released a series of updates to AutoCAD's graphic and drawing features. AutoCAD 2019 has a price tag of about $50,000.[1] History The first release of AutoCAD was released in 1982 and was a desktop application for the Apple II, II+, IIe, III, and IIle microcomputers. AutoCAD 2003 was the first version of AutoCAD to include the capability to save drawings as graphics files (GIFs) in addition to the standard BMP format. AutoCAD 2004 (AutoCAD 9.0) was the first version of AutoCAD to support Windows XP. It was also the first version of AutoCAD to include floating windows with selectable dimensions, grids, and crosshairs. AutoCAD 2004 included a new user interface (UI) with a drop down menu (contextual menus) and a ruler that allowed users to edit or draw on drawings in two modes: standard and snap. AutoCAD 2004 also featured the capability to save drawings to disk in the.DWG file format. AutoCAD LT 2004 (AutoCAD 9.1) was introduced in February

Autodesk also provides the ability to create custom views and custom databases. Operations Autodesk has a part of the company focus on post-processing operations such as 2D and 3D rotations, tracing, geometry operations, image-based modeling (import, export, etc.) and several others. They can also apply various conversion operations to existing drawings. Rendering Autodesk has an Autodesk rendering service, which is offered at no charge and allows uploading of a new file with rendering preferences and settings. The rendering service supports external renderers, which allow the use of real-time renderings. Post production In addition to Autodesk's own rendering and post-processing operations, Autodesk has the Autodesk Design Review service that allows the user to receive, review, and rate a drawing. It provides a point-based workflow, collaborative reviews, and can share 3D content over the web with a web browser.
